ADMISSIONS EXAMINATIONS

Some programs require standardized test scores such as the General Record Examination (GRE). Scores must be received directly from the appropriate testing agency by the program’s admission application deadline. The University of Denver’s ETS Institution Code is 4842. Individual graduate programs reserve the right to set test score requirements.

If an exam is required for admission, it must be taken prior to acceptance unless the applicant was granted English Conditional Admission, in which case, it must be completed prior to matriculation, and the official test score must be received no later than the sixth week of the first quarter of enrollment or a hold will be placed prohibiting registration.

Pearson Vue and the Educational Testing Service policy are to report scores until September 30th following the fifth anniversary of the test date. Therefore, test scores are only valid for five years.

Note: Contact the graduate unit for details on required admission examinations.
