

LAST DATE OF ATTENDANCE

Federal financial aid rules require institutions to record a student's last date of attendance if the student ceases attending a class.

Last date of attendance appears on web and paper grade rosters. It is very important the university know that a student received a failing (F) grade because the student ceased attending class. In cases where faculty do not have an exact date, an estimate should be provided (e.g., last assignment date).