Unit of Credit

The University of Denver unit of credit is the quarter hour. In general, each quarter hour of credit requires one class period of 50 minutes each week. During summer session, class periods last at least 60 minutes, with some scheduled for longer blocks of time. Depending on the instruction method, the quarter-hour credit may not equal the hours spent in class.